

A big parade was scheduled to be held at Camp Gordon, near Atlanta, a few days ago, when along came the influenza epidemic. The parade was held, but note the precautions—every man wearing an "anti" mask.

Photo, Underwood & Underwood.

At Left—A view of Queant on the famous Queant-Drocourt switch line. At Right—The Marne valley and hill where the Americans stopped the Hun and saved Paris.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.
British Official Photo, from Underwood & Underwood.

An example of Boche spite. Driven from this French city the Hun is venting his spleen by sending long range, high explosive shells back upon the buildings to which the inhabitants are already beginning to return.

British Official; Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.